

FUTURE LOADING....

Bad news about climate change causes us to worry more and more every day. In the world we live in, climate change and global warming, decreasing water reserves after floods, the severity of storms and unexpected natural disasters cause us to feel this situation more rapidly and strongly with each passing day. So what kind of world will our children live in in the future? Unfortunately, human beings do not take too many precautions in this regard, or although the measures taken are not sufficient, they remain bystanders to this situation. For this reason, unfortunately, there is no solution to the increase in air temperature, which causes terrible consequences and causes global warming. With this awareness; With the aim of raising conscious individuals for our world and our environment, we have developed our project so that our students will become environmentally conscious and become competent individuals in recycling.
